CUE TITLE DISPUTE TO BE ARBITRATED

De Oro and Cannex Consent to Plan for Peace Conference.

The De Oro-Cannex controversy as to a foul shot charged by the veteran against his opponent during their three cushion title match at the Friars Club is to be settled by arbitration. When the question was submitted to the officials of the Brunswick-Balke-Coller Company, donor of the championship emblem, it was said that the matter would be handled by the board of directors of that corporation. De Oro suggested that it would take considerable time to get the board of directors together and suggested that each player name an umpire, and these to select a referee, the three thus named to constitute a board of arbitration. The suggestion was accepted by the Brunswick-Balke-Coller Company, and the celebrated case seems in a fair way of settlement. De Oro announced that if the board thus formed decided against him he never again would mention the matter.

Declares Referee Erred.
The entire dispute hinges on the question as to whether the referee of the match, Albert Cutler, erred in deciding that the shot was a foul. De Oro placed after a foul stroke by Cannex, who twice hit the white ball in attempting a shot. De Oro claimed that the referee was in error, and that the shot should be considered a legal one. De Oro claimed that the referee was in error, and that the shot should be considered a legal one. De Oro claimed that the referee was in error, and that the shot should be considered a legal one.

"Stars" Better Than "Jewels."
"Of boats supposedly available the choice seemed to rest between the 'Jewel' and 'Star' classes and the committee after inspection of the two types strongly favored the 'Stars.' It was thought that even if existing stars could not be purchased it would be possible to build any number desired for the purpose of the regatta. The cost of new stars would be about $100 each, and of available jewels when put in commission, that the star class in view of its popularity and the keen racing at the regatta, would be the more desirable openings for interclub competitions, with occasional matches away from Oyster Bay, and finally that the star boats, at a selling price much nearer to the cost than the jewels, while few little boats, have lost racing value owing to the breaking up of their class during the war."

Stoane Encounters Obstacle.
In his efforts to arrange a match between Willie Hoppe and Jake Schaefer for the 18-22 championship, Tom Stoane, who is acting for Charles Stoane in the latter's place, has encountered an obstacle. When Stoane and R. B. Benjamin met Hoppe's manager to talk over the matter, the latter declared that the match would be played for a prize of $100,000, and that the match would be played for a prize of $100,000, and that the match would be played for a prize of $100,000.

Urges Building of "Stars."
It is hoped that in spite of the rather late delivery a sufficient number of members will build in this class, which is the most popular of the regatta. The committee has been urged to build in this class, which is the most popular of the regatta. The committee has been urged to build in this class, which is the most popular of the regatta.

Tennis Tournaments Coming.
The tennis players of this vicinity will begin to get busy on the courts next week from tomorrow, and for the rest of the month they will have to fit from club to club as the schedule gains scope.
